TRYING A CURIOUS PLAN.
Teaching Modern Science in the Oldest of Oriental Languages.

The Punjab province of India has been for some years the scene of an interesting academic experiment, that of communicating western science, philosophy and literature to the people through their mother tongue, and to the educated through their learned languages, and not in an English dress, as elsewhere.

Sixty-three years ago Macaulay and Duff destroyed the very different vernacular system of bribing native students of Sanskrit, Persian and Arabic to read their own sacred books. Gradually the learned classes came to be left out of our state system of public instruction, with evil results. Sir Donald McLeod accordingly devised and Sir Charles Atchison carried out the plan of once attracting those in the Punjab at least, by oriental titles and degrees, and of examining all students for the ordinary university degrees through the medium of their own vernacular. The Punjabi university and its oriental college were founded at Lahore for these two ends.

The latest report of the Edinburgh graduate, Mr. J. Stine, M. A., who is director of the department, is not very favorable to the success of the double experiment, now some 18 years old. He declares that "the prospects of advanced education through the medium of the vernacular are not improving" at least, and Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick, the Lieutenant-governor, has ordered a special report on the subject. In the Oriental college last year only 5 students were reading for the title of Shastri, or honor in Sanskrit; 14 for Vishwara, or high proficiency in the same; 11 for Manava Fazil, or honors in Arabic; 7 for Munshi Fazil, or honors in Persian; 7 for Munshi Alim, and 7 for the Gurumukhi title in the Sikh vernacular. Of the 117 candidates in the local university in Amritsar a third passed. Of 117 in Arabic two-thirds passed, and so in Persian and Gurumukhi. The only encouraging fact is that every year the number of the Pundit class who take honors and degrees in Sanskrit is rising, and more than half of them go to the Punjab examinations from the other provinces where there are no such tests.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

LEGAL PLEA FOR HER HAND.

Ablo Argument of Counsel Involving Personal Interests.

The judge's daughter was perturbed.

"I am in doubt as to whether I have kept to the proper form of procedure. In law one can err in so many little technicalities that I can ever fearfully."

"The judge looked at her so sharply over his glasses that she involuntarily paused.

"I thought you had sent him about his business," he said.

"I did hand down an adverse decision," she answered, "and he declared that he would appeal. However, I convinced him that it was the court of last resort in a case like that and that no appeal would fit my decision."

"Possibly the court was assuming a little more power than rightfully belongs to it," said the judge thoughtfully. "But let that pass. What did he do then?"

"He filed a petition for a rehearing."

"The usual case," said the judge, who is usually nothing but a mere formality.

"So I did," agreed the girl, and was about to add that it was her turn to speak again when the judge interrupted her.

"I am sorry to say that he did not make the application," said the judge, scowling.

"Well," she replied, blushing a little.

"You see, he appealed by letter, and his contention was that the case was of that peculiar character that cannot be properly presented by briefs, but demands oral arguments.

The fact that the latter had been omitted, he held, should be held an error, and the point was such a novel one that I consented to let him argue it. Then his argument was so forcible that I granted his petition and consented to hear the whole case again. Do you think?"

"I think," said the judge, "that the court favors the plaintiff."—Chicago Post.

There are chords in the human heart—strange varying strings—which are only struck by accident which will remain mute and senseless to appeals the most passionate and earnest and respond at last to the slightest casual touch.

FOR SILVER.

A RECEPTION TENDERED HON.
A. C. CLEVELAND.

He Addresses a Large Audience at the Opera House and Announces His Position.

A large audience gathered at the Opera House last evening, the occasion being a reception to the Hon. A. C. Cleveland of White Pine county. The following representative citizens occupied seats on the platform: Dr. H. H. Hogan, H. H. Beck, B. F. Curler, J. C. Doughty, R. W. Parry, S. A. Hamlin, J. B. McCullough. The names of J. T. Fitzgerald, J. E. Jones, Dr. Bergstein, Eli Thompson, G. H. Thomas and J. R. Emmett were called and the gentlemen requested to take seats on the stage, but they did not respond.

Hon. E. R. Dodge acted as Chairman of the meeting and stated that the object was to do honor to one of Nevada's most worthy citizens, the Hon. A. C. Cleveland, a man who had gone to the Republican National Convention at St. Louis as a delegate, and who had, upon the declaration of that convention for the gold standard, walked out of the convention and declined to further participate in its deliberations. The present meeting had been called regardless of party and to do honor to the man who had so bravely announced by his acts his sincerity in behalf of his people. He then introduced Hon. A. C. Cleveland.

Mr. Cleveland said that he was no stranger to the people of Washoe county, and for the people of Washoe as well as all of Nevada he had the warmest feeling. He told how he had been selected as a delegate to the Republican National Convention and had gone there with the best interests of the people of the State at heart. He said that he walked out of the National Convention believing that he was doing what any honorable man would have done under the circumstances that surrounded him.

That two years ago on the stump he had stated that if the Republican party declared for the gold standard he was done with it. He told of the committee work and that when the gold standard plank was adopted, that Mr. Teller announced his withdrawal from the convention, and he followed him. That he had no apologies to offer, nor did he have any criticism for those who differed with him. He believed that if Henry M. Teller was endorsed at the Democratic National Convention he would be the next President of the United States. He said he was opposed to the issue of bonds and that the present conditions of this great country were deplorable, and that under the single standard the country could not exist. He spoke of the different men who had walked out of the convention. At the mention of each name there was enthusiastic applause. He said that it was no easy matter for men to take the step they had taken, and they did it after the most careful consideration, but it was like a man parting with all that was dear to him.

He said that he could have endorsed the platform down to the gold plank, but no further. That the policy of those men who had left the party could not be stated until the other conventions had announced what they would do, but that if Teller was chosen as a candidate, these same men would support him.

As Mr. Cleveland concluded he was enthusiastically cheered and applauded. Hon. H. H. Beck was then introduced. He believed that the reception tendered Hon. A. C. Cleveland was the proper thing for any community to do under similar circumstances, that when there was a matter that was of interest to the community, the whole people should act and work together.

Mr. Beck paid a tribute to Mr. Cleveland's loyalty to his State and said that he was satisfied when Mr. Cleveland was sent as a delegate to the Republican National Convention, that he would walk out if the single standard was a part of its declarations. He said that he was glad to be here to do honor to Hon. A. C. Cleveland. [Applause.]

Dr. Hogan was introduced and said that as he understood it to be a non-political gathering, he was glad to be permitted to be present, and pay his respects to Mr. Cleveland. The Doctor was inclined to be facetious, and said that he was sure that there would be nothing but Populists after this fall and possibly a few Republicans. He told how he had left the Republican party, but he did not meet the same reception as his friend Cleve was accorded this evening. The Doctor spoke earnestly of the serious condition of the country and said that there was an impending crisis. He complimented Mr. Cleveland and congratulated the people of the State on having such a courageous representative of their interests.

J. C. Doughty was introduced and complimented Mr. Cleveland for his heroic act in leaving the National Convention. That under the great influence that surrounded him and before that great body of men, Mr. Cleveland's act was as brave as that of the Revolutionary fathers, when they declared their independence of the mother country. It gave him pleasure to do Mr. Cleveland honor, and he believed his action was endorsed by the people of Nevada.

Hon. B. F. Curler was introduced and

THE CHICAGO CONVENTION.

Michigan May Give Twenty-Eight Votes for Silver—A Split Seemingly Inevitable.

The Democratic National Convention which is to meet at Chicago July 7th will be composed of 930 delegates. Delegates have been elected in every State and Territory and all, except Alaska, have been heard from and that is put in the silver column. If the two-thirds rule is not abrogated it will require 620 votes to nominate for President, but a majority, that is 566 votes, can adopt a platform. Tables prepared in the East show how the delegations from the several States and Territories stand on the financial question:

For Gold—
For Gold—
Arkansas ..... 12
California ..... 18
Colorado ..... 5
Connecticut ..... 2
Florida ..... 3
Georgia ..... 20
Massachusetts ..... 39
Illinois ..... 45
Indiana ..... 39
Lowell ..... 20
Michigan ..... 19
Mississippi ..... 24
Pennsylvania ..... 64
Rhode Island ..... 8
South Dakota ..... 3
Tennessee ..... 24
North Carolina ..... 8
North Dakota ..... 8
Oregon ..... 4
South Carolina ..... 18
Utah ..... 8
Virginia ..... 24
Washington ..... 12
Wyoming ..... 8
Dist. of Columbia ..... 4
New Mexico ..... 6
Alaska ..... 6

According to these figures the silver men lack 36 votes of a two thirds majority. Michigan, which in the table stands 28 for gold, has 13 silver delegates, but the State convention adopted the unit rule and instructed the entire delegation to vote for gold. There are contests, however, in two districts of that State now represented by the gold men. If the two gold men are unseated the silver men will then control the delegation and the 28 votes of Michigan under the unit rule will be cast for the silver candidate. Deducting 28 votes from the 340 will reduce the gold vote to 312, and adding them to the silver vote of 564 it will increase the silver vote to 612, or eight less than the required two-thirds.

If these figures are correct it is possible, that the two-thirds rule remains in force, that the Chicago convention may ballot for days without result and end in the nomination of a silver man by the free coinage men, and of a single standard man by the gold men.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Mr. Gilman Brown, of 34 Mill St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors, who finally gave him up, saying: "Your boy won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to the use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial Bottles Free at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

MIT Elster Dead.

M. R. Elster, died at Carson yesterday morning. He was a native of Ohio, aged 73 years. He came to this coast in 1849, and located at Placerville, then known as Hangtown, and built the first hotel at that place. In 1868, he came to Nevada and resided in Ormsby county for many years. He had been prominent in Democratic councils, and had the reputation of being a man of sterling qualities. He leaves a widow and six children—three sons and three daughters.

Negro Expressiveness.

The true inwardness of the so-called "sound money" sentiment of the Republicans of the South was voiced at St. Louis by National Committeeman N. W. Case (colored) of Texas, leader of the black-and-tan Republicans of the Lone Star State: "If the gold men treat us right we're for sound money; otherwise we will raise hell," which means that the negro Republican demands a percentage of the billions fished from the people of the United States by the infamous gold standard.

Dayton Times.

The case of the State vs. Beck and Kelley, came up for argument before Justice Linn yesterday. The arguments of attorneys were heard, including that of Mr. Beck, who appeared in his own behalf. The arguments took up nearly the whole day. The case was submitted at 5 o'clock and taken under advisement. Judge Linn will pass upon the case at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

BREVITIES.

Alfred Updyke returned yesterday from Lassen county, where he has been prospecting with considerable success. He will return there in a few days.

Young Men's Christian Association—Rooms in Bank of Nevada building. Men's meeting, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Address by Rev. S. Unsworth. Men only invited.

President Stubbs will be in his office at the University on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 8 to 12 o'clock. Parties desiring to see him on business or otherwise will find him there.

The Carson graduating class has invited the Reno and Virginia classes of '96 to participate in a grand ball at Carson on the 1st of July. It is quite probable that both classes will accept. C. Lemery of the Arcade restaurant will serve fine chicken dinner this afternoon and evening. Special attention will be paid to the family trade. Dinner, with claret and beer, at 50 cents.

L. E. Gaston of the Palace will serve an elegant French dinner to-day from 4 till 8 o'clock. The menu will be varied, and consist of the best the market affords. Dinner, with a half-bottle of claret or beer, at 50 cents.

Many Republicans congratulate Hon. A. C. Cleveland upon his manly action at St. Louis, and say they are with him against the gold standard men. Only a few who expect places at the Federal crib, will vote for McKinley.

James Carroll, city; Robt. J. Miller, Denver; R. T. Bollard, Kansas City; P. Traynier, Mohawk; John Hailey, Cal.; H. H. Whitehead, Kentucky; M. A. Sharkey and sisters and Roy Richards, Carson; John Wright and H. W. Hanson, city, were new guests at the Hotel Reno last night.

The Goldbug Gazette, which no longer pretends to be for free coinage, is borrowing trouble about the course of the JOURNAL and other Silver papers in Nevada. Calm your perturbed spirit, neighbor, and rest assured that no Silver paper in Nevada will make a bid for Federal pap by supporting McKinley.

Several groups of Republicans were noticed last evening in close conversation. The Cleveland meeting and the position of Mr. Cleveland no doubt has had a demoralizing effect in the ranks of the office seekers. It is more than probable that the g. o. p. will exchange places, as far as Nevada is concerned, with the untrified of four and two years ago and the vote of the State will fall far below a thousand.

THE CLEAR VISION.

I did but dream I never knew
What charms our stormy season were
Was never yet the sky so blue?
Was never earth so white before?
Till now I never saw the glow
Of sunset on your hills of snow
And never learned the bough's designs
Of beauty in its leafless lines.

Did ever such a morning break
As this my eastern windows see?
Did ever such a day go by
With weird photographs of shrub and tree?
Rang ever bells so wild and fleet
The music of the winter street?
Was ever yet a sound by half
So merry as you schonbaus laugh?

Fair seem these winter days, and soon
Shall blow the warm west winds of spring.
To see the sunbound hills in tune
And blithely urge the bluetiful wing.
The vale shall laugh in flowers, the woods
Grow mazy green with leafing buds.
And violet and wind flowers sway
Against the throbbing heart of May.

Break forth, my lips, in praise and song,
The wiser love so fervently blind,
Since, richer for its clustering growth,
The world, O Father, hath not wrung
With loss the life by thee prolonged.
But still, with every add year,
More beautiful the world appears

PLAYS THAT PLEASE.

Good and Bad Points of Long Runs From the Actor's Standpoint.

Long runs, like most things, have their good as well as their bad points. Good, because constant repetition so identifies one with a character impersonated that it becomes second nature to feel and act it. Iteration may in the end make one mechanical, but at least it insures a certain technique, which, when inspiration fails, rescues the work from crudity. Joseph Jefferson once told me that in "The Rivals" he had always gained an effect by pulling off the fingers of his gloves separately and deliberately to accentuate certain words, but that under inspiration he would throw technique to the winds and have the glove off with one jerk. Who that has ever seen Bob can forget those brilliant green gloves and the fun he got out of them?

On the other hand, the evil effects of long runs are indisputable. Prominent among them is a general mental weariness which often causes one to forget the most familiar lines and to turn blankly to the prompter's box or to some friendly actor for the words. This happened to me several times, notably in "The Winter's Tale" in London, where, after playing it 100 nights, I had to be prompted in several of Hermione's great speeches. Edwin Booth, during the long run of "Hamlet" at his own theater, frequently called for the lines. An actor who was in his company told me that Booth turned to him one night, and with a look of consternation asked what he was to say next. His mind for the moment had become a blank. The over gave him the word. Booth began the speech, faltered again, was prompted a second time, but finding it impossible to continue called out in a loud voice, "Ring down the curtain."

Many other examples might be cited to show how weary the brain grows after acting the same part six or seven times weekly for 100 or 200 consecutive nights, with only the rest of Sunday to distract the mind.—May Anderson's Memoir.

They All Do It.

The wanderer had returned after many years, and was inquiring about his old friends.

"Brown," he said, "is in the wholesale clothing business, I believe."

"Wholesale clothing and bicycles," corrected the native. "The firm carries a side line of bicycles, you know."

"And Jones has a grocery store, I'm told."

"Yes. Full line of groceries and Bull Run bicycles. He's the agent for the Bull Run wheel."

"Smith went into the manufacturing business, didn't he?"

"Oh, yes. He got interested in a sewing machine manufacture, and a little later they took up bicycles and are doing a rushing business. I understand they have a capacity of over 100 wheels a day."

"And what's White doing?"

"He's the agent for a famous gunmaker and is doing well. He sells all kinds of guns, pistols and bicycles."

"And Johnson?"

"Oh, he's a manufacturing jeweler, and he turns out a mighty good wheel too."

"Billings, I suppose, is still in the furniture business?"

"Yes, but I understand that he turns out a better bicycle than he does desk or bureau."

The returned traveler began to betray some surprise.

"Is—Is Wilson still in the livery business?" he asked with some hesitation.

"Certainly, but he devotes most of his time to the little bicycle repair shop in the rear of his stable."

"Ah, there goes old Bones, the sexton. The old fellow is!"

"Oh, he's agent for an automatic pump for inflating tires."

"Is there any one who isn't in the bicycle business?" asked the returned traveler sadly.

"I don't think of any one just now," replied the native.—Chicago Post.

No Procrastination.

"Ethel," he whispered, "will you marry me?"

"I don't know, Charles," she replied softly.

"Well, when you find out," he said, rising, "send me word, will you? I shall be at Mabel Hicks' until 10 o'clock. I don't hear from her by 10, I'm going to ask her."—London Tit-Bits.
